Oct. 31 Mrs. Johnson, twenty-five years old; her baby, Ida, two years old, and her sister, Ida Urban, were stricken in the same day. All of them are still down with the disease, but will likely recover. When the Health Inspectors went to the house they learned that Johnson had just recovered from an attack of small-pox, which had not been reported by the attending physicians.

Inspectors investigated the case, and decided that the household doctor who attended Johnson did not really know that the patient had the small-pox, which is very hard to diagnose. They came to the conclusion, however, that Johnson had infected his family and set out to learn how he contracted the disase.

Six cases were reported on Nov. 8, and four of these occurred in other parts of the tenement in which the Johnson family lived and one at 890 Eighth avenue, around the corner. Just prior to that, on the 5th and 7th of this month, five cases were found in the immediate five cases were found in the immediate neighborhood.

This morning cases were reported from 43 and 43 West Thirty-eighth, the latter in the rear of the Johnson's house.

Meanwhile the Chrystie street visitation has been developing. The mission where the missionary had the disease is at 135, and just before his attack, two months ago, a case occurred at 256, and more recently at 185 Chrystie street.

The Health Department has placed all the infected places under close surveillance, and particularly the Johnson house. Inspectors are at the door, who warn everybody who enters and follow everybody who issues until he is located in his home. Then the person and the place is fumigated.

The additional case of John Wall, of 50 Trinity place, reported this morning, shows the wide diffusion of the disease.

Or, Doty says in his report that he is not alarmed, but he urges all people to get vaccinated at once and take the greatest precautions against the infection
